

Lecture Series for Patients, Staff, and Friends...

When: Thursday, March 29, 2007

Time: 12:00 – 1:00 PM

Where: Room M-207 (use 530 E. 70th St entrance)

“DVT: An Ounce of Prevention...
(Words of Wisdom from an internist)”

Elizabeth Nilson, MD, MPH

Assistant Professor of Public Health and Medicine
Associate Program Director, General Preventive Medicine
Division of Medical Ethics
Department of Public Health
Weill Cornell Medical College

Deep vein thrombosis (DVT) is a blood clot that forms in a vein deep in the body, usually in the lower leg or thigh.

Complications from DVT kill up to 200,000 people a year in the U.S. - that's more than AIDS and breast cancer combined. Given this startling statistic, *it's important to know the facts.

- ❖ Who is at Risk?
- ❖ What are the Symptoms and Treatment Options?
- ❖ Can it be Prevented?

